

252 Exit Interview Big Questions

The grade I would like for this semester, if it's not too much to ask, would be an A. I want this grade because I feel like I've earned it for a number of reasons. For starters I think I missed only 1 class for the entire semester, as well as only 1 hacking session. I know we may not have been always on topic for the entire work session, but we always got work done. I also always paid attention and was able to apply what we learned in class to the things we made that we made and on the labs. So my commitment was there for this class. I also really enjoyed the whole concept of doing our own work, and I think in my team I made a valuable contribution. I know I wasn't the best at coding, that was more Rob, but I came up with our big ideas, I gave suggestions, I helped guide is in a general direction, and in these past few weeks when it came down to crunch time for the final project I even set our own deadlines, which I'm happy to say we met. I learned all I could when I was given the chance, and for not studying on any of the tests I think I did pretty well, even on stuff we hadn't learned yet. Though one thing I will say is that for this semester I could not have done anywhere near as well as I did without my amazing team. Which is surprising because we were "Team Indecisive". The 3 of us worked extremely well together and without them I don't think I would have been anywhere near "A" material. So an A for the semester would mean to me that I worked hard on this course even outside of class (hacking sessions, group hang outs, personal research). It would also mean to me that I worked well with my group and we did what we set out to do, which we pretty much did (could have finished if we had a smart phone). So I think I deserve this grade. I worked hard, learned what I could, truly enjoyed learning and the class, and I worked well with my group. In terms of adversely affecting others in the future, I don't think it will. As much as I've loved programming, I don't see myself going into it for a career, so I wouldn't be competing with others for jobs in that field. And in terms of scholarships I honestly will not be applying for another one ever. I only applied for 2 in high school and my dad told me to lose one of them so people that really needed it could get it. Grad school all depends on what I do, but I doubt it will adversely affect others.
